Cambridge University Press
Geography is a course of four modules to prepare students for the HIGCSE or similar examinations. The modules have been developed for the Cambridge Open Learning Project (COLP) to provide access to quality education for students in Southern Africa.

- The outcomes-based approach encourages students to give their own ideas
- Modules are divided into units
- Self-mark activities reinforce learning • Exercises help learners measure their progress • Summaries reinforce what students have learnt

- Answers to questions are provided
- Real-life case studies from Southern Africa are included

Business Studies: IGCSE Hodder Education

As a sociological specialty, medical sociology has a distinct history and literature spanning over four decades. This literature is a synthesis of medical and sociological knowledge reflecting the relationships among medicine, health, and society. This information is of interest not only to medical sociologists, but also to physicians, nurses, psychologists, social workers, health economists, hospital administrators, and health insurers. This reference book is a guide to the sociological terminology that these health professionals are likely to encounter. The volume includes concise, alphabetically arranged entries for numerous terms. For all but the most basic terms, entries briefly discuss the theoretical and practical significance of the topics. Entries cite relevant literature, and the volume concludes with a bibliography of works cited. Cambridge International AS and A Level Business Studies Revision Guide Leckie & Leckie This title is endorsed by Cambridge Assessment International Education to support the full syllabus for examination from 2020. Why is the social group

that society
most often
looks to for
warmth,
intimacy, and

love also characterized by cruelty
and violence?
This book attempts to answer that seemingly ironic question. The authors
examine aspects of family stress
from both social and cultural viewpoints
and conclude that violence
grows out of the nature of social arrangements
and cannot be explained in terms of the personalities
of husbands
and wives.

They emphasize upon a the fundamental fundamental contradiction of power and s built into family life as it is now constituted, and point out that counseling and family therapy alone will not decrease the level of violence in family settings. Real change will come about only with a restructuring of the relations between women and men, and that in turn is dependent fundamental reallocation of power and status in society at large. In their examination of the apparently irrational or bizarre aspects of family life, the authors of this book move beyond the problem of physical violence to an understanding of the nature of the family itself.
