I first heard those words spoken from Dan Fante himself, while being interviewed by Terry Gross, from her popular show on NPR, Fresh Air. I immediately went out and purchased the book, and have been hooked on Fante's stuff every since. The book is written in a first person narrative, and the narrative is colorful, angry and witty.

86'd by Dan Fante - Goodreads

Dan Fante (Author) Dan Fante is the author of the memoir Fante, the novels 86'd, Chump Change, Mooch, and Spitting Off Tall Buildings, and several books of poetry, short stories, and plays. He lives in Los Angeles with his wife and son.

In "86'd" Bruno Dante struggles with his demons (alcoholism, drug abuse, the violent voices in his head) as he attempts to hold down a job with a limo service in LA. Those familiar with Fante's other works (which all feature Dante as protagonist) will welcome a return to the sordid, darkly comic world of this character.

86'd - Dan Fante - Hörbuch - BookBeat
Fante's main character (and his alter ego) Bruno Dante is an alcoholic writer wrestling through his temptations to make use of his talent. So yeah, it can get a little raw. If you're looking to get out of your comfort zone, it's pretty safe to say Fante's humorous (and a little painful) 86'd will serve you well.

86'd : NPR

"Dan Fante is an authentic literary outlaw." (New York Times) "If you like your prose vodka-soaked, soulful, and bleeding on the page, then Fante is your man." (Ben Meyers, 3AM Magazine) "Fante is a brilliantly economical stylist . . . sad, bitter, yet somehow infused with hope." (The Face) review 1: The second two books of the Bruno Dante quadrology, if it is such a thing are a bit less horrifying but much smoother in tone, voice. Better written than the first two. 86'd being the last one is a really great denouement to the whole saga. Recovery is fucking tough.
