2 Voted. Pedal The World is a 2015 feature-length documentary that follows Felix Starck, a young German who, fuelled by a desire to add some meaning to his life and discover the world, cycled 18,000 km through 22 countries in 365 days. Setting out from his home in Germany, Felix pedals across Europe to Turkey, before getting on a plane and heading to South East Asia, New Zealand, the United States and, eventually, back to Germany.

The final pedal on the list is also the perhaps one of the rarest. Despite being on the market for a little over a year, the Boss DSD-2 arguably paved the way for the more modern phenomenon that is loop pedals. By today's standards, 0.8 seconds of available recording time is minuscule, but in 1985 it was near revolutionary.
