Despite dramatic progress cleaning the air since 1970, air pollution in the United States continues to harm people ’ s health and the environment. Under the Clean Air Act, EPA continues to work with state, local and tribal governments, other federal agencies, and stakeholders to reduce air pollution and the damage that it causes.

To pay society ’ s cost of air pollution, the government should impose Pigouvian taxes. This tax would charge the polluters relative to the harm their pollution imposes on society. If these taxes were added to the cost of gasoline, people would switch to cleaner forms of transportation. This would reduce air pollution and its economic impact.
