Insatiable bloodlust, dangerous sexualities, the horror of the undead, uncharted Transylvanian wildernesses, and a morbid fascination with the 'other': the legend of the vampire continues to haunt popular imagination.

Reading the Vampire examines the vampire in all its various manifestations and cultural meanings. Ken Gelder investigates vampire narratives in literature and in film, from early vampire stories like Sheridan Le Fanu's 'lesbian vampire' tale Carmilla and Bram

Stoker's Dracula, the most famous vampire narrative of all, to contemporary American vampire blockbusters by Stephen King and others, the vampire chronicles of Anne Rice, 'post-Ceausescu' vampire narratives, and films such as FW Murnau's Nosferatu and Bram Stoker's Dracula. Reading the Vampire embeds vampires in their cultural contexts, showing vampire narratives feeding off the anxieties and fascinations of their times: from the nineteenth century perils of tourism, issues of colonialism and national identity, and obsessions with sex and death, to the 'queer' identity of the vampire or current vampiric metaphors for dangerous exchanges of bodily fluids and

AIDS.

Reading the Vampire
Robinson

A vampire princess runs away from her coven when she finds out they want to marry her off to a vampire king, so they can use their gift to destroy werewolves.

Leaving her clan, she decides to live a normal human life but she finds out she's mated to a lycan king.

Damien doesn't want her because she is just human and can't let go of his playboy life but the force keeps getting stronger and he can't resist.

But what happens when he finds out that she's a vampire? Will Damien still accept Camilla or will he reject her?

" Camilla you left with my child! " Damien screams in my face, breathing heavily. I look at him perplexed as he holds his hair in frustration. " I desperately looked for you.... every day, everywhere I go, you were like a shadow, I breathed but didn't live, you became a nightmare and the best dream all at once," he says in a calmer tone, looking at me like

---

he once did
" I told you I was pregnant but you chose to believe them over me," I scream, I wipe the tears streaming down my cheeks, he rejected me!

" You rejected me Damien, and by doing so you rejected our child," I hiss, my ex mate shakes his head as he approaches me but I take a step back.

" Cami," He breathes.
