"My name is Annie John" is the announcement that opens this chapter (8.1). Finally, we hear her say her own name. Annie John, now age seventeen, is leaving Antigua to study nursing in England. She doesn't want to, but she desperately wants to get away from the sights, sounds, and smells of her room, family, and current life: "I especially never wanted to lie in my bed and hear my mother gargling again" (8.1).
