Looking for a fun, rewarding American Government program that your Christian homeschooled high schoolers can handle on their own and enjoy doing? Then set them up with American Government for Christian Homeschoolers, a self-directed study that's exciting for students and worry-free for parents! American Government for Christian Homeschoolers is an interesting, faith-affirming, easy-to-use program with everything your students need for a successful overview of American Government. The four daily readings per week are short and punchy (many are between 2-4 pages), and each daily section includes "What Do You Think?" review questions designed to help students really get the most out of what they read that day. (Students can check their answers on their own, or they can ask Mom or Dad to help!) Scott Clifton--author, homeschool dad, and homeschool high school co-op instructor since 2002--has created just the kind of American Government study you'll want your young person to read. Laid out in a convenient four-short-readings-per-week format, American Government for Christian Homeschoolers makes it fun and edifying for students, and a breeze for parents! Here's what you get with American Government for Christian Homeschoolers: * A Christian, pro-limited-government perspective * A handy, 32-week, 4-days-per-week reading schedule * Intros, notes, and review questions (with answer keys!) * Easy-to-score quizzes (with answer keys!) * A sense of humor to make learning American Government fun!

This authoritative edition of the complete texts of the Federalist Papers, the Articles of Confederation, the U.S. Constitution, and the Amendments to the U.S. Constitution features supporting essays in which leading scholars provide historical context and analysis. An introduction by Ian Shapiro offers an overview of the publication of the Federalist Papers and their importance. In three additional essays, John Dunn explores the composition of the Federalist Papers and the conflicting agendas of its authors; Eileen Hunt Botting explains how early advocates of women 's rights, most prominently Mercy Otis Warren, Judith Sargent Murray, and Charles Brockden Brown, responded to the Federalist-Antifederalist debates; and Donald Horowitz discusses the Federalist Papers from the perspective of recent experiments with democracy and constitution-making around the world. These essays both illuminate the original texts and encourage active engagement with them.

The public policy overviews by Brookings are always among the best, and they are even more valuable this year when several think tanks appear to have defaulted on their traditional role in offering up reviews for consideration by the transition team. Across the various issue areas, including international, social, domestic, and governance policy domains, they present thoughtful recommendations.

5 Steps to a 5 500 AP U.S. Government and Politics Questions to Know by Test Day Mometrix Media LLC

In the United States, some populations suffer from far greater disparities in health than others. Those disparities are caused not only by fundamental differences in health status across segments of the population, but also because of inequities in factors that impact health status, so-called determinants of health. Only part of an individual's health status depends on his or her behavior and choice; community-wide problems like poverty, unemployment, poor education, inadequate housing, poor public transportation, interpersonal violence, and decaying neighborhoods also contribute to health inequities, as well as the historic and ongoing interplay of structures, policies, and norms that shape lives. When these factors are not optimal in a community, it does not mean they are intractable: such inequities can be mitigated by social policies that can shape health in powerful ways. Communities in Action: Pathways to Health Equity seeks to delineate the causes of and the solutions to health inequities in the United States. This report focuses on what communities can do to promote health equity, what actions are needed by the many and varied stakeholders that are part of communities or support them, as well as the root causes and structural barriers that need to be overcome.
