Hearing on Response to Terrorism Springer Publishing Company

The book explores the relationship between Christology and theological anthropology through the lens provided by the theology of Karl Barth and the mind/body discussion in contemporary philosophy of mind. It thus comprises two major sections. The first develops an understanding of Karl Barth's theological anthropology focusing on three major facets: (1) the centrality of Jesus Christ for any real understanding of human persons; (2) the resources that such a christologically determined view of human nature has for engaging in interdisciplinary discourse; and (3) the ontological implications of this approach for understanding the mind/body relationship. The second part draws on this theological foundation to consider the implications that Christological anthropology has for analyzing and assessing several prominent ways of explaining the mind/body relationship. Specifically, it interacts with two broad categories of theories: 'nonreductive' forms of physicalism and 'holistic' forms of dualism. After providing a basic summary of each, the book applies the insights gained from Barth's anthropology to ascertain the extent to which the two approaches may be considered christologically adequate.

Purpose: The purpose of the study was to examine the relationship between participation in a simulated neonatal resuscitation on neonatal intensive care unit (NICU) nurses' knowledge of the Neonatal Resuscitation Program (NRP) guidelines and accuracy of the psychomotor skills required during resuscitation. Design: An educational project design was used. Method: NICU nurses employed at a regional hospital in Central Illinois were asked to complete a short, online survey, participate in a simulated resuscitation, and then complete the same online survey as before. Answers from before and after the simulation were compared and evaluated for knowledge of NRP. Resuscitation skill performance was assessed during the hands-on session. (N = 10). Findings: Prior to participation in the simulated neonatal resuscitation, 90% of NICU nurses did not have complete knowledge of NRP guidelines (N=9). During the simulated resuscitation, one out of ten NICU nurses required correction on providing ventilation per NRP guidelines. After the hands-on portion of this project, only one of the ten NICU nurses did not answer all NRP based questions correctly (N=1). Conclusions: Participation in simulated neonatal resuscitation improves NICU nurses' knowledge of NRP and provides a safe place to practice and improve on resuscitation skills. Participation in simulated resuscitations should be implemented more frequently on nursing units to improve life-saving skills. Keywords: neonatal intensive care unit, Neonatal Resuscitation Program, simulated neonatal resuscitation -- Abstract.

A strikingly effective, one-of-a-kind learning resource This one-of-a-kind learning resource for neonatal nurse practitioner/clinical nurse specialist students in both academic and clinical settings uses complex case studies to reinforce the best practices in treating vulnerable neonatal patients. Based on applications and outcomes, the case study approach develops critical thinking and clinical decision making and fosters effective role transition in practice-based disciplines. Authored by leading neonatal nurse practitioner (NNP) educators nationwide, these multifaceted, unfolding case studies address and synthesize the most important content covered throughout the NNP curriculum. Additional audiences for this book include interprofessional staff working in Level II and Level III nursery settings. Beginning with case studies for identifying maternal risk factors, and culminating in case studies for communicating with parents, this text shows a holistic view of caring for neonatal patients. Chapters organized by body system address diseases and disorders and prompt the reader for diagnosis and treatment. Progressing from basic to complex, case studies include objectives, clinical pearls, and critical thinking questions. A robust instructor tool kit contains pedagogical strategies for facilitating online discussion, chapter conclusion quizzes, a variety of simulation experiences, and more. Key Features: Uses a complex case-based learning approach for neonatal advanced practice nursing-the first book to do so Authored by leading NNP educators nationwide Provides case studies synthesizing key content areas Helps prepare students for effective role transition Includes a robust instructor toolkit and can be used in online courses

Reading Comprehension: Assisting Children with Learning Difficulties examines the complex nature of reading comprehension. It introduces a model for classifying reading comprehension based on an expanded Simple View of Reading. Issues related to assessment, diagnosis, and remediation of reading comprehension difficulties are discussed and translated into clear recommendations to inform reading intervention design and practice. It gives an informed understanding as to why reading comprehension is difficult for some children with learning disabilities such as ADHD, autism, language difficulties and dyslexia. From leading literacy research, the book develops a deeper understanding of thinking processes that facilitate comprehension at the word, discourse, and metacognitive levels. Children will benefit from the introduction of evidence-based methods for teaching reading comprehension using structured multiple-strategy frameworks.
