This is followed by the name of the interviewer or recipient, if given, and supplemented by details regarding the place and date of the interview/communication. Unpublished interviews and personal communications (such as face-to-face or telephone conversations, letters, emails, or text messages) are best cited in-text or in notes rather than in the bibliography.

How to Cite an Interview in APA | Citation Format & Examples

The format of an APA interview citation depends on whether the source is a published interview or an interview you conducted yourself. Personal interviews that can't be retrieved by the reader shouldn't be included in an APA reference list. Instead, cite the interview as a personal communication in the text.

APA reference lists only include works that can be found by the reader. As a personal interview is not published or "findable," it should not be included in an APA reference list. Instead, a personal interview should be referenced as a parenthetical citation.
For example: (J. Smith, personal communication, May 17, 2008).

While APA format dictates that you should not include unpublished interview sources in your reference list, you should cite these sources in the text of your paper. By doing so, you help ensure that your readers have a better understanding of where you got the information.
