This journal will help you prepare for job interviews and be able to pass them. First 30 pages of journal will ask you questions related to you and your job experience like: Why did you leave your last job? Have you ever been fired or forced to resign? Can you explain this gap in your employment history? What would you hope to accomplish in your first three months here? What are your career objectives and what steps have you taken toward obtaining them? When have you tried to accomplish something and failed? What did you do about it? Walk me through the steps you took to reach an important long-term goal. Walk me through the steps you take daily to do your job, and explain your process in details. What's your biggest weakness and strength? Describe a decision you made that was unpopular. How did you implement it? What are some of your biggest mistakes during career? What have you learned from your mistakes? Have you ever had problems with a supervisor or a coworker? How did you handle that? Do you consider yourself to be a leader? Are you good at delegating tasks? Tell me about your process? What experience do you have with reporting tools, metrics, dashboards and scorecards? What technical aspects of your last job did you have to learn? How do you typically bring data together to answer critical questions? What is your experience with data visualization? What tools do you prefer to use for displaying data? What project management experience do you have? How do you keep track of tasks and activities to ensure everything is going according to plan? When have you managed a project under a tight deadline? Was it successful? Describe a complex project you worked on recently. What process did you use to manage the complexities of the project? When have you created a strategic plan? What was the level of scope and complexity you experienced while creating the plan? How do you approach segmenting a complex problem into smaller parts? If I were to call your references after our interview what are they likely to say about you? List 10 things that you are really good at, and you are not afraid working on or with it. Tell me one word that best describes you and then tell me of which personal or professional achievements are you most proud? Extra notes that you would like to add that might come handy during interview After you answer all those questions per each page, then you will be ready to start job application online. You apply for new jobs, and write down each interview details, date, time, type, company and much more. In the end of each job interview you will be able to write feedback about that company and to see where you stand with it. Never give up on your dream job, prepare yourself and keep trying till you get it and achieve it. Good luck on your job hunting.
