TORST
The Czech king and Roman Emperor Charles IV met with the French king Charles V in Paris in 1378. The author describes with intellectual brilliance and narrative talent the journey from Prague to Paris as a step by step journey reportage using contemporary French chronicles and vast medievalistic literature as well as many beautiful illustrations. The result is an appealing account on medieval life, everyday and intellectual, mentality, grand European politics of the time or even medieval cuisine. The first part of the book presents the well-known facts of Charles IV life (brought up in Paris, his father ' John Luxemburg ' s political and representational activities, his international goals, etc.). The middle part of the book brings a transcription of richly illustrated French chronicles. The third part analyses the importance of the meeting of the two most powerful European rulers of the time. Final and most original part consists of individual studies concerning practical organisation of medieval festivities, its logistic, transport, or culinary details, the court manners, relationships and symbolics. Šmahel draws from latest knowledge and methods from archeology and microhistory to cultural anthropology or iconography. This as a highly readable account of medieval time inspiring in its originality for expert historians as well as appealing to the general public. The Parisian Summit, 1377-78 Jan Ság1, born in Humpolec, Bohemia, in 1942, is a pioneer of color photography in the Czech Republic.
