Education is as old as the evolution of the human race. Right from the time of its progression, education began from gaining knowledge and skills related to the fulfillment of basic human needs. These were passed on to the next generations in an informal manner. With the growth of civilization, the need of formal education for the development of the individual as well as the society was realized and gradually education got institutionalized. Ever since, education has not remained stagnant but it has undergone wider transformation through the course of time. Expansion of education has helped in the intensification in the ability of our educational system. This includes the increasing number of aspirants, expansion of physical facilities for imparting education, and diverse forms and types of education taking place due to rapidly expanding knowledge base, resulting in new specialized areas of knowledge. This growth is in response to the rapidly changing socio-economic changes in the present world.

This book addresses several aspects of the Human Rights law and sustainable development analysed in the existing literature. The editor has tried to demonstrate that the core assumption of sustainable development regimes - that sustainable development maximizes certain social benefits over social costs by providing a necessary inducement for the work in public and distribution of goals to 2030 - has several important implications for the society.
