"When you're dumb enough for long enough, you're gonna meet someone too smart to love you, and they're gonna love you anyway, and it's gonna go so poorly," Neil Hilborn writes in his debut full-length collection, OUR NUMBERED DAYS. In 2013, Hilborn's poem "OCD" went viral, and has amassed over 11 million views to date. While this collection ruminates on love, heartbreak, and mental illness, these poems are anything but saccharine. Hilborn uses the same humor and self-deprecation that propelled "OCD" to success in order to make his unmatched vulnerability all the more powerful. Ultimately, Hilborn is a poet of the people: his work is accessible, honest, and entertaining; a revitalizing entry in contemporary poetry.

This is something about self-expression--something they don't teach in school. Something that's very hard to learn on your own. This is something about putting yourself first because it's okay to love yourself before anyone else.

This is something about doing what's best for you, no matter what people say, because only you know what you deserve. This is something about being real, being real to who you are and accepting things as they come and change. This is something about your mistakes, about your flaws, and about how beautiful it is to get up and try again. This is something about being you, about using your voice when you're afraid. About building enough courage when you feel like standing up to something you don't believe in, something that's wrong. This is about you, and every day should be about you, and that's something you should always consider.

A Brilliant Madness Andrews McMeel Publishing

not all love is good love and not all energy is good energy. and just because they love you, doesn't give them the right to disrespect you... doesn't give them the right to belittle you. no one is doing you any favors and you definitely don't owe anyone anything. so if it doesn't feel like home then you have the right to leave. you don't have to stay if you don't want to and you don't have to pretend you're on good terms just to show face. people separate all the time. they break-up over anything--over nothing but let it be known, you don't have to take the verbal abuse. you don't have to put up with it... and you shouldn't worry about the consequences. I'd be more concern if you stayed if you didn't have the courage to do anything about it. so take this with you... take this as a sign and as a lesson. those who don't respect you will never respect you. no matter how much time you give them. no matter how many nights you pray for them to change. like I said, not all love is good love and not all energy is good energy but you should know the difference between who deserves your loyalty and who doesn't. between who deserves your time and who doesn't and know how to respond to it as well. only you know what type of love you deserve.

only you. remember that. this is the moon matrix.
