BLOOD ON THE TONGUE. In the icy depths of a Peak District winter, DS Diane Fry finds herself with three dead bodies on her hands. It's all too much for the depleted manpower of E Division to cope with, and Fry needs all the help she can get. But DC Ben Cooper, is following a cold trail of his own - and they don't come any colder than this one.

Ben Cooper also involves himself in the 50 year old mystery of a Lancaster bomber, that crashed into the hillside in 1945, when on a routine mission. The pilot, Daniel Mc Teague, was suspected of walking away from the crash and leaving his comrades to die. There's so much going on in this book, seemingly unconnected.
