Changes in Medieval Society

Society in western Europe changed with the new rulers. Some of the Roman elite families died out while others became more involved with Church than secular affairs. The older values of Latin scholarship and education mostly disappeared, and while literacy remained important, it became a practical skill rather than a sign of elite status.

In the region around Cambrai in France, it had dropped 50% by 1370 and continued to fall by a further 25% by the mid-fifteenth century. With grain production no longer viable, it was necessary for agriculture in medieval Europe to make a shift. One solution was to put the land out to pasture as animal husbandry required less manpower.

Medieval Europe, the age of

Christendom and Feudalism

The Black Death was one of the largest epidemics the world had ever seen, having wiped out mass amounts of people the plague came to completely shift European medieval society into the modern era. The black death showed no regard as to who it affected, it affected rich and poor, man, women and children all the same.

Change In Medieval Society

Europe

During the High Middle Ages, which began after 1000, the population of Europe increased greatly as technological and agricultural innovations allowed trade to flourish and the Medieval Warm Period climate change allowed crop yields to increase.

Social Structure - Medieval Europe

Feudalism, or the feudal system, was a social system in medieval Europe. The feudal system gave protection and kept the country safe. Popes for much of the Medieval era, Popes were the last major influence in anything to do with the church. Popes had a heavy influence over political and economic decisions as well for a time.

Crusades were taking place, other important changes were occurring in medieval society. Between 1000 and 1300, agriculture, trade, and finance made significant advances. Towns and cities grew. This was in part due to the growing population and to territorial expansion of western Europe. Cultural interaction with the Medieval Europe - World History Online

This new era of enlightenment for Europeans began in Florence towards the end of the 14th century, following the Middle Ages, and after the Black Death wiped out nearly half of Europe's population. During the Renaissance, a revolution in philosophy, science and mathematics dramatically changed arts and culture in Europe.

You are to use the principle of continuity and change to investigate medieval society in ONE of three areas (). Crime and Punishment; Military and Defence Systems; Towns, Cities and Commerce You are to compare Medieval European society with modern European society (). You must note which elements of society have continued to exist and which elements have changed.
