- Reinforcement is contingent upon the first response after a varying, unpredictable period of time. On a VI 30-sec, the first lever press after an average interval of 30 secs will result in food - Looking down the street for the bus will be reinforced after a varying, unpredictable period of time.

ANSWER: In the differential escape procedure: the response dimension is force of the lever press, and the value chosen for our contingency is 20 grams. So for lever presses that are performed with more force than 20g, the shock will be terminated and the lever press will be reinforced.
