Canadian writer Mary Lawson's debut novel is a beautifully crafted and shimmering tale of love, death, and redemption. The story, narrated by 26-year-old Kate Morrison, is set in the onymous Crow Lake, an isolated rural community where time has stood still.

Crow Lake totally captures the essence of Northern Ontario farming families that I have known and been a part of. This book has helped me to better understand where I come from, but would be an enjoyable read to anyone. Mary Lawson has now overtaken both Peggy Atwood and Alice Munro as my favourite Canadian author.
