Arabella is a critical exploration of societal expectations, personal ambition, and the complexities of love and virtue. In this work, the author critiques the rigid social norms and expectations placed upon individuals, particularly women, in the 18th century. Arabella, the protagonist, is a young woman raised in seclusion, whose ideas of love and virtue are heavily influenced by romantic novels. Her romantic ideals clash with the real world, leading to a series of misunderstandings and comedic situations. The novel provides a subtle commentary on the dangers of allowing fiction to dictate one's reality, while also critiquing the limited roles available to women in society. Since its publication, Arabella has been recognized for its humor and its nuanced critique of gender roles and societal pressures. The novel explores the tension between individual desires and societal constraints, with Arabella's character serving as both a vehicle for comedy and a reflection on the serious limitations placed on women during the period. The work remains relevant for its exploration of the social and cultural dynamics of the time and for its portrayal of a woman's struggle to reconcile her personal beliefs with societal expectations. By examining the consequences of rigid social norms and romantic idealism, Arabella continues to offer insights into the challenges faced by individuals in navigating the complexities of identity, love, and society.

The first single-volume history of Zimbabwe with detailed coverage from pre-colonial times to the present, this book examines Zimbabwe's pre-colonial, colonial and postcolonial social, economic and political history and relates historical factors and trends to recent developments in the country. Zimbabwe is a country with a rich history, dating from the early San hunter-gatherer societies. The arrival of British imperial rule in 1890 impacted the country tremendously, as the European rulers exploited Zimbabwe's resources, giving rise to a movement of African nationalism and demands for independence. This culminated in the armed conflict of the 1960s and 1970s and independence in 1980. The 1990s were marked by economic decline and the rise of opposition politics. In 1999, Mugabe embarked on a violent land reform program that plunged the nation's economy into a downward spiral, with political violence and human rights violations making Zimbabwe an international pariah state. This book will be useful to those studying Zimbabwean history and those unfamiliar with the country's past.

Rereading the historical record indicates that it is no longer so easy to argue that history is simply prior to its forms. Since the mid-1990s a new wave of research has formed around wider debates in the humanities and social sciences, such as decentering the subject, new analytics of power, reconsideration of one-dimensional time and three-dimensional space, attention to beyond-archival sources, alterity, Otherness, the invisible, and more. In addition, broader and contradictory impulses around the question of the nation - transnational, post-national, proto-national, and neo-national movements—have unearthed a new series of problematics and focused scholarly attention on traveling discourses, national imaginaries, and less formal processes of socialization, bonding, and subjectification. New Curriculum History challenges prior occlusions in the field, building upon and departing from previous waves of scholarship, extending the focus beyond the insularity of public schooling, the traditional framework of the self-contained nation-state, and the psychology of the schooled individual. Drawing on global studies, historical sociology, postcolonial studies, critical race theory, visual culture theory, disability studies, psychoanalytics, Cambridge school structuralisms, poststructuralisms, and infra- and transnational approaches the volume holds together not despite but because of differences and incommensurabilities in rereading historical records.
