Review&colon; Buzz Aldrin, one of manned space flight's pioneers, has helped create a stunning, possibly prophetic novel of the future of space exploration. A radio beacon from an unknown world leads an astronaut to disaster on the Moon -- and his son far beyond that as he searches for the key to the mystery of Tiber, a civilization who left artifacts in the solar system some 9,000 years ago, with sufficient impact on human affairs to explain some odd references in the Bible.

Overview Sailing on Sunlight - a Space Couch explainer!

Science fiction stories in the late 20th and early 21st centuries suffer greatly in their lack of science. Not so Buzz Aldrin and John Barnes 'Encounter With Tiber'. With Aldrin as a co-author, I expected a little more direct approach to the storyline. By 13% I was ready to stop reading, but i persevered.
