Love is timeless. Love knows no boundaries. Love is eternal. In the present... Journey Stanton measures every man she meets against her ideal. And they all come up short. "They just don't make men like Reno Black anymore." Yes, Journey is hopelessly in love. For her, those words are literally true - this love is hopeless - for the man she's given her heart to lived over a century before. Her family and friends worry because she prefers to live in a dream world of the past rather than the present. Even though all she has of Reno is an old tintype photo and an ancestor's journal, Journey has memorized every word about the hero who sacrificed his life to save their family. If she had her way - - she'd give everything she owned to spend just one day with him. In the past... Reno Black seems to have everything a man could want. He'd survived a hellish war and emerged with a band of brothers whose bonds were forged on the field of battle. Together, they'd traveled to the wild west and carved a home out of the wilderness of Texas. Soon, God willing and the creek don't rise, he'd be reunited with his long-lost brother. Hell, he even had a family of sorts - the Stanton kids. They weren't blood kin, but he loved them just the same. All of these things gave Reno's life meaning. Still, something was missing. He needed more. Hell, he wanted what his Captain had found with Fancy. He wanted someone to hold on cold nights. Someone to share his life. Someone soft and sweet in his bed. Reno longed to find the wife his mother foretold for him. The woman who waited at the end of the rainbow. Sometimes... if he closed his eyes, he could almost see her face. So far, she'd eluded him - but he wouldn't give up. No matter how far he had to travel. Reno's Journey to love will be one you never forget. **Content Warning: This book contains adult and sexual situations. It is intended for audiences 18+ ONLY**

Somewhere between global and local, the nation still lingers as a concept.

National art histories continue to be written - some for the first time - while innovative methods and practices redraw the boundaries of these imagined communities. Narratives Unfolding considers the mobility of ideas, transnationalism, and entangled histories in essays that define new ways to see national art in ever-changing nations. Examining works that were designed to reclaim or rethink issues of territory and dispossession, home and exile, contributors to this volume demonstrate that the writing of national art histories is a vital project for intergenerational exchange of knowledge and its visual formations. Essays showcase revealing moments of modern and contemporary art history in Canada, Egypt, Iceland, India, Ireland, Israel/Palestine, Romania, Scotland, Turkey, and the United Arab Emirates, paying particular attention to the agency of institutions such as archives, art galleries, milestone exhibitions, and artist retreats. Old and emergent art cities, including Cairo, Dubai, New York, and Vancouver, are also examined in light of avant-gardism, cosmopolitanism, and migration. Narratives Unfolding is both a survey of current art historical approaches and their connection to the source: art-making and art experience happening somewhere.
