Excerpt from Gardening Difficulties Solved: Expert Answers to Amateurs Questions It is commonly acknowledged that the Questions and Answers columns of a gardening paper contain information that is invaluable to its readers generally. The questions are asked by amateurs and answered by experts. The replies are useful not only to the actual inquirers but to all amateurs, for the trials and troubles of one inexperienced gardener are very similar to those of another. Thus the suggestion that a careful selection of Questions and Answers from the columns of The Gardener would be welcomed in book form was not made without good grounds. This suggestion prompted the preparation of "Gardening Difficulties Solved." The information given in the following pages is practical and to the point, and, it is hoped, will meet all ordinary difficulties that confront the possessor of a garden. The questions have actually been asked by amateurs, so that the troubles they voice are real. Since conditions of climate influence gardening work to a considerable degree, the district from which each question was sent is indicated. My goal in producing this book is basically what I have been doing all my professional life - sharing science based information to anyone who wants to learn. There are many gardening books and websites. Many are based on opinion and experience. These two characteristics are good, but even better when backed by scientific research. In this book, I share information that has been substantiated by scientific research. If it is my opinion, I will simply say so, but you won't find much of that. The information I convey is either based on research I have conducted or am familiar with or information which I have gathered from various university websites.
