Below is an example of how Golden acrylics displays the color transparency and opacity of two of their red pigments. This shows that pyrrole red light is more opaque than alizarin crimson hue. Here you can see on a larger tub of white titanium paint how they use a continuum chart to explain the transparency versus opacity of a paint.

No combination of colors can create primary colors, but primaries mix in various combinations to form all other colors. You make secondary colors (green, orange, and purple/violet) by mixing two primary colors. If you want to go farther, you can create tertiary colors by mixing one primary and one secondary color to get yellow-orange, orange-red, red-violet, violet-blue, blue-green, or yellow-green. Keep this wheel handy to remember which colors mix to make other colors.

Mix Forest Green with a touch of Dioxazine Purple and Cadmium Yellow Medium. This creates your shadows. Adding the green and the yellow to the mix will give you some highlights. Keep adding yellow to give you even more highlights. Remember, this is a rough color mixing guide only. You may need to add White here to get paler highlights or a cooler yellow like Cadmium Yellow Light to give brighter highlights.

Alizarine and Ultramarine, the cold red and warm blue, will mix great purples and violets. The warm red, with yellow, will make pure oranges and golden yellow. Yellow and the cold and 'turquoise' Prussian blue will mix strong, pure greens. Alizarine carmine, mixed with white, will make an almost pure magenta (chemical pink).
