With an initial series of twelve titles each having a print run of 50,000 copies, the first Little Golden Books were priced at a very affordable 25 cents each. Each book consisted of 42 pages, with 28 pages printed in two-tone color and 14 in four-tone color, a tactic which helped the publisher save money.
Golden Guide - Wikipedia
The Golden Field Guides are a series of larger pocket-sized books that were created by Western Publishing and published under their "Golden Press" line, as a related series to the Golden Guides. Edited by Herbert Zim and Vera Webster, the books were written by experts in their field and illustrated with a simple straightforward style. Unlike the Golden Guides, the Field Guides went more in-depth, being more aimed at the high school/college level. They also had sturdier covers, obviously intendin

When St. Martin's Press acquired the Golden Guide® trademark, they published Golden Guides and Golden Field Guides, some of which overlap with the previous series. For example, Weather was a Golden Science Guide when published by Golden, but is a Golden Guide when published by St. Martin's. Stars a Golden Nature Guide: herbert s. zim: Amazon.com: Books

All About Golden Guide Paperbacks

With a title like that you would think it is indeed a Golden Guide. But it does not belong in the series for several reasons. First of all it has no illustrations. What it does have is a four page section with photos of Golden Guides available. The rest of the book is text. It is a tall book (7") with 64 pages and a photo cover. All of these factors rule out the possibility of it belonging to the uniform series.
