There, in Ye Olde Greyfriars Dining-Rooms, owned by Mr. John Traill, and four doors beyond the kirkyard gate, was a cozy little inglenook that Auld Jock and Bobby had come to look upon as their own. At its back, above a recessed oaken settle and a table, a tiny paned window looked up and over a retaining wall into the ancient place of the dead.

Humiliated by being brought home a prisoner, and grieving for the forsaken grave in Greyfriars, Bobby crept away to a corner bench, on which Auld Jock had always sat in humble self-effacement. He lay down under it, and the little four year-old lassie sat on the floor close beside him, understanding, and sorry with him.

Greyfriars Bobby (novel) - Wikipedia

Greyfriars Bobby was a Skye terrier who so loved his master, he guarded his master's grave for 22 years after his master's death. This is a lovely story and it is a true story. I am not sure that all of the Skye's adventures portrayed in this book are true, but they are endearing none-the-less.
