"Critical stories are narratives that recount the writer's experiences, situating those experiences in broader cultural contexts. In this volume of Critical Storytelling, marginalized, excluded, and oppressed peoples share insights from their liminality to help readers learn from their perspectives on living from behind invisible bars. Female inmates at Decatur's Correctional Center and the undergraduate Millikin University students who worked with them come together to give voice to their specific histories of living from behind invisible bars and pose important questions to the reader about inciting change for the future. Specifically, the voices in this volume seek to expose, analyze, and challenge deeply-entrenched narratives and characterizations of incarcerated women, whose histories are often marked by sexual abuse, domestic violence, poverty, PTSD, a lack of education, housing insecurity, mental illness, and substance addiction. These silenced female inmate voices need to be heard and contextualized within the larger metanarrative of prison literature. Through telling critical stories, these writers attempt to: sustain recovery from trauma, make positive changes and informed decisions, create a real sense of empowerment, strengthen their capacity to exercise personal agency, and inspire audiences to create change far outside the reaches of physical and metaphorical bars. Contributors are: Anonymous, Soren Belle, Megan Batty, Dwight G. Brown, Jr., Sandra Brown, Kathryn Coffey, Kelly Cunningham, Paiten Hamilton, Kathlyn J. Housh, Rebekah Icenesse, Kala Keller, Jelisa Lovette, Bric Martin, Amanda Minetti, Laura Nearing, Angie Oaks, Claire Prendergast, Cara Quiett, J. M. This volume deals with Part 5 of Leviticus: Inheritance. Chapter 23 is on the sabbatical year. One year in seven the Israelites were forbidden to plant their fields. This was also a year of debt forgiveness for zero-interest charitable loans. These were seed laws and they applied to Israel, based on Israel's conquest of the land under Joshua. Chapter 24 is on the jubilee land laws. In year 49, the heirs of the original conquest generation were to be given their share of the family rural land. The judicial basis of the jubilee laws was the military conquest of the land under Joshua. It never applied to Jews living outside the land. Chapter 25 deals with economic oppression. It was illegal to use the state to oppress people economically. Chapter 26 is on the food miracles: the triple crop in year 48. Chapter 27 is on the right of redemption. A man who had sold his land until the jubilee year could buy it back on a pro-rated basis, as could his nearest of kin. Chapter 28 deals with poverty and usury. It was illegal to lend at interest to a poor brother in the faith for a loan to offset an unexpected disaster. This law did not apply to commercial loans, which were governed by the jubilee year law, not the sabbatical year law. Chapter 29 is on the role of adoption in liberating men from bondage. Chapter 30 is on permanent slavery for the children of foreigners, and adoption as a way of deliverance. Chapter 31 deals with the redemption of a Hebrew who had been sold into slavery to pay commercial debts. The kinsman-redeemer could make a pro-rated payment. Chapter 32 is on nature as an agency of God's sanctions. Chapter 33 is on the limits to economic growth. Chapter 34 is on God's escalating wrath in history. Chapter 35 is on a special payment to enter the priestly tribe, the Levites. Chapter 36 is on the redemption-price system for animals. Chapter 37 is on tithing on domestic work animals. ----- This series, An Economic Commentary on the Bible, is published by Reconstructionist Radio, a producer and provider of Reformed (Postmillennial, Presuppositional, Covenantal, Calvinist, and Theonomic) Christian Reconstructionist podcasts, audiobooks, lectures, sermons, music, and other media.
