Why Holistic Learning is Especially Effective - Harmony ...

The holistic development approach is becoming more recognised throughout early childhood development and a 'hands-on' approach for teachers, teacher aides, and early childhood educators. Supporting children as they learn at their own pace is important for their early childhood development and we should encourage and take every opportunity to explore their interests in a comfortable, natural environment.

Early Childhood Development Index 2030 ... - UNICEF DATA

In 2015, early childhood development became part of the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). These global goals include a commitment to ensure that, by the year 2030, all children will have equitable access to quality early childhood development and early learning opportunities. SDG indicator 4.2.1 was chosen to specifically monitor the impact of government action towards this target, and UNICEF was tasked to lead the development of a measure to track progress.

Holistic Early Childhood Development Index (HECDI) ...

Holistic learning considers the individual child. Because holistic learning is focused on the complete growth and health of a child, it also places emphasis on the individual child, their interests and talents. Allowing children to be the leader of their learning gives them the opportunity to expand in ways that will have the most impact for them.

HECDI - Holistic Early

Childhood Development Index

In pursuit of the overarching goal that all children reach their developmental potential, the Holistic Early

Childhood Development Index

(HECDI) Framework offers a set of targets, subtargets and indicators for the holistic monitoring of young children's well-being at both

What Is Holistic Development in Early Childhood?

Holistic development in early childhood deals with a much wider scope of factors than simply the normal physiological development of skills and knowledge in young children.

Many factors, such as social and cultural environments, physical environments, and the spiritual beliefs of parents and caregivers all influence early childhood development.

Through the Singita Holistic Early Childhood Development Support

programme, children are supported to fully develop in physical, cognitive, psychological and social domains.
