Homo

Britannicustells the epic history of life in Britain, from man's very first footsteps to the present day.

Drawing on all the latest evidence and techniques of investigation, Chris Stringer describes times when Britain was so tropical that man lived alongside hippos and sabre tooth tiger, times so cold we shared this land with reindeer and mammoth, and times colder still when we were forced to flee altogether. This is the first time we have known the full extent of this history- the Ancient Human Occupation of Britain project, led by Chris, has made discoveries that have stunned the world, pushing back the earliest date of arrival to Homo dominus redefines what it means to be human.

Starting with the component pieces of human uniqueness—cognition, self-awareness, language, technology, aggression, altruism, culture, the arts, and spirituality—it rebuilds the human species using a new conceptual blueprint. Sure to spark debate, Homo dominus offers a new vision of who we are and how we got here. Author Stephen Dennis draws from neuroscience, paleontology, psychology, and sociobiology to show that the impetus of human evolution is our propensity to control events and their consequences. This means simply that our root operating system is built on actions taken to bring perceptions into line with expectations. A pivotal genetic shift driven by ecological instability in the late Miocene era triggered this evolutionary divergence and propelled us out of apedom. From our hardscrabble origins on the forest margins to our current position of global dominance, Homo dominus recasts traditional human evolutionary theory in terms of basic control theory. It is a powerful organizing principle that puts our past in a new context and projects our future in a new light. El tiempo es una rueda de movimiento continuo, el presente es el fruto del pasado, y el futuro es el fruto del presente; cualquier esperanza por un futuro mejor requiere que entendamos el pasado y cambiemos el presente. Más Allá del Homo Sapiens describe detenidamente, en una forma entendible por todos los lectores, las causas y las razones por las cuales el mundo continua siendo inhumano con sus habitantes. Este viaje místico e histórico cuenta los eventos de 5.000 años de historia, proveyendo a los lectores con nuevas interpretaciones y métodos para el mejoramiento individual y mundial.

This book is written in two volumes. Click here for information on Volume II. , Beyond the Homo Sapiens - Vol II Visit the author's web site Homo Dominus Editions Gallimard This monograph has set itself the goal to examine, outline, elucidate, and supplement the existing body of knowledge concerning a theme from patristic and medieval theology recalled in 1953 by Marie-Dominique Chenu, and that is the assertion that man was created as a replacement for fallen angels (Yves Congar: créature de remplacement; Louis Bouyer: ange de remplacement).

The study first shows that the idea of man having being created to take the place of fallen angels was introduced by St. Augustine and developed by other church fathers. It then identifies the typical contexts in which the subject was raised by authors of the early Middle Ages, but goes on to focus on the discussion that developed during the twelfth century (Anselm of Canterbury, the school of Laon, Rupert of Deutz, Honorius of Autun), which represents the high point of the theme under investigation, culminating in the assertion that man is an "original" being, created for its own sake, for whom God created the world – a world which together with, and through, man is destined for the heavenly Jerusalem. The question as to whether man would have been created if the angels had not sinned (cur homo) bears a clear similarity to a further controversy, the origins of which also go back to the twelfth century, and that is whether the Son of God would have become incarnate if man had not sinned (cur Deus homo). Next, the book sheds light on how the subject begins to gradually fade away through the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, both within monastic tradition, which nonetheless held onto Augustine's motif, and within scholastic theology, which asserted that man was created for his own sake. The conclusion summarizes the findings and points to the surprisingly contemporary relevance of the foregoing reflections, particularly in relation to the critique that the Swiss philosopher and theologian Romano Amerio († 1997) offers concerning a statement in the pastoral constitution of the Second Vatican Council (Gaudium et spes 24), according to which man is "the only creature on earth that God

Emerging from the Brentano-Husserl tradition, this volume charts new ground in the conceptual discourse of questioning answering. Bruin address the "logic" of questions and argues, along phenomenological lines that internationality has the structure of questioning and answering. Here, he breaks rank with the better known and more traditional speech-act, grammatical, semantic, and logical approaches to the study of questioning to explore question from a phenomenological perspective. Particular attention is given to the internal aspects of questions and answer and the question-answer relationship. The author goes beyond simply demonstrating that questioning is somehow basic to human existence to explore the mechanics of why this is so.

Yuval Noah Harari, author of the bestselling Sapiens: A Brief History of Humankind, envisions a not-too-distant world in which we face a new set of challenges. In Homo Deus, he examines our future with his trademark blend of science, history, philosophy and every discipline in between. Homo Deus explores the projects, dreams and nightmares that will shape the twenty-first century - from
