Communication research is evolving and changing in a world of online journals, open-access, and new ways of obtaining data and conducting experiments via the Internet. Although there are generic encyclopedias describing basic social science research methodologies in general, until now there has been no comprehensive A-to-Z reference work exploring methods specific to communication and media studies. Our entries, authored by key figures in the field, focus on special considerations when applied specifically to communication research, accompanied by engaging examples from the literature of communication, journalism, and media studies. Entries cover every step of the research process, from the creative development of research topics and questions to literature reviews, selection of best methods (whether quantitative, qualitative, or mixed) for analyzing research results and publishing research findings, whether in traditional media or via new media outlets. In addition to expected entries covering the basics of theories and methods traditionally used in communication research, other entries discuss important trends influencing the future of that research, including contemporary practical issues students will face in communication professions, the influences of globalization on research, use of new recording technologies in fieldwork, and the challenges and opportunities related to studying online multi-media environments. Email, texting, cellphone video, and blogging are shown not only as topics of research but also as means of collecting and analyzing data. Still other entries delve into considerations of accountability, copyright, confidentiality, data ownership and security, privacy, and other aspects of conducting an ethical research program. Features: 652 signed entries are contained in an authoritative work spanning four volumes available in choice of electronic or print formats. Although organized A-to-Z, front matter includes a Reader 's Guide grouping entries thematically to help students interested in a specific aspect of communication research to more easily locate directly related entries. Back matter includes a Chronology of the development of the field of communication research; a Resource Guide to classic books, journals, and associations; a Glossary introducing the terminology of the field; and a detailed Index. Entries conclude with References/Further Readings and Cross-References to related entries to guide students further in their research journeys. The Index, Reader 's Guide themes, and Cross-References combine to provide robust search-and-browse in the e-version.

This book gives students an answer to the question, "What does my professor want from this essay?" In lively, direct language, it explains the process of creating "a clearly-written argument, based on evidence, about the meaning, power, or structure of a literary work." Using a single poem by William Carlos Williams as the basis for the process of writing a paper about a piece of literature, it walks students through the processes of reading, brainstorming, researching secondary sources, gathering evidence, and composing and editing the paper. Writing Essays About Literature is designed to strengthen argumentation skills and deepen understanding of the relationships between the reader, the author, the text, and critical interpretations. Its lessons about clarity, precision, and the importance of providing evidence will have wide relevance for student writers.

The Big Six Skills Approach to Library & Information Skills Instruction Bloomsbury Publishing

"Literature: Reading to Write" masterfully weaves together critical thinking skills, writing, and reading instruction through the use of writing prompts, literary selections, and intriguing discussion points. The book helps you transition from being an active reader to a critical writer through a series of reading prompts and unique writing exercises. This process helps you find meaning in a broader context by forging connections between literature and your personal experiences. The book includes an eclectic array of classic and contemporary voices in literature, as well as sections devoted to newer genres, such as graphic novels. This interactive approach develops the knowledge and confidence you need to write in your own voice and to produce research papers and essays that are thought-provoking, engaging, and authentic. "Literature: Reading to Write" includes features designed to focus on reading, critical thinking, and research writing. Reading - A diverse, four-genre assortment of readings, handpicked by professors, includes a variety of authors, such as Susan Glaspell, Tim O'Brien, and Lucille Clifton. - Shorter mini-chapters introduce you to the writing/reading process and highlight newer, appealing genres, such as comedy, horror, music, film, graphic novels, and experimental literature. - Integrated writing instruction is broken down into a step-by-step process that analyzes each chapter reading. Critical Thinking - Biographical and contextual boxes are strategically placed next to selections to illustrate historical and literary meaning. - In a feature called Comparing Themes, you are asked to compare the same theme in various works to develop your skills in comparative analysis. - Three critical casebooks demonstrate argumentative and interpretive writing for each genre. Writing - Model student papers appear in every chapter in Part II (Writing in Response to Literature) to show progress in mastering and demonstrating the various writing skills. - Part IV on Research Writing comprehensively covers the entire research process from brainstorming to citing sources. - The book conforms to the MLA Guidelines that were updated in 2009.
