Basic human instincts, or understand yourself ...

The instinct was very strong in the primeval people, and men would spend a lot of their time hunting and providing for their families. Nowadays we don't chase mammoths anymore, we hunt our food in the supermarkets, and we need money to pay for it. Yes, money falls in the category N1 of our basic instincts.

Human Instinct How Our Primeval

How our primeval impulses shape our modern lives. From caveman to modern man ... Few people doubt that humans are descended from the apes; fewer still consider, let alone accept, the psychological implications. But in truth, man not only looks, moves and breathes like an ape, he also thinks like one. Sexual drive, survival, competition, aggression - all of our impulses are driven by our human instincts.

Human Instinct by Robert Winston - Penguin Books
New Zealand

We live not in a primeval pure world, but in a world that is known and has been transformed, a world where everything has, as it were,
been given a "human angle", a world permeated with our attitudes towards it, our needs, ideas, aims, ideals, joys and sufferings, a world that is part of the vortex of our existence. If we were to remove this "human factor" from the world, its sometimes
...

Human Instinct How Our Primeval Impulses Shape Our Modern ...

Sexual drive, survival, competition, aggression - all of our impulses are driven by our human instincts. They explain why a happily married man will fantasize about the pretty, slim, young woman sitting across from him in the tube and why thousands of people spend their week entirely focused on whether their team will win their next crucial match.

The point is that every organism, including human beings, is a kind of protective jacket for DNA. Our cells, which in turn group together to make tissue, bone, skin, blood and nervous systems, are all integral components of our DNA's extraordinarily complex survival machine.
