" In the Wake is a slow exercise in avoidance by digression. Petterson writes with a grim, morbid hand, allowing hope in only at the very last minute. His words have a music reminiscent of W. G. Sebald, though with fewer grace notes. Tastefully translated by Anne Born, the novel swells with muted lyricism."

In the Wake | Per Petterson | Macmillan

In The Wake is a semi-autobiographical novel from Norway writer Per Petterson. His writing is excellent and on it's own I might have enjoyed this more, but this is the fourth in a row I've read from him and it's not my favourite.
