Inland by Kat

Rosenfield Inland is an atmospheric novel that leaves readers wondering whether the main character is insane or really is what she believes she is as suggested in the first chapter. The central character is sixteen year old Calypso (Callie) Morgan who lives with her professor father, Alan Twaddle and who struggles to cope with an unsettled life after a family tragedy.

Today marks the release of Kat Rosenfield's Inland,
a moody, scary spin
on paranormal YA
that will get under your skin and keep you far from the water on your next
beach weekend (or
find you inexplicably drawn to it). It
follows the
chronically ill
daughter of an overly cautious father and a
mother who died
mysteriously at sea
from the landlocked
plains of the midwest
to the open edge of the Gulf Coast.
