"As an intern you will encounter many new challenges. These will range from very simple to most complex.

Please remember that you have acquired the tools to address this adversity. And, even when you feel most overwhelmed, you are undoubtedly surrounded by a wealth of available resources that include ancillary and nursing staff, fellow interns, senior residents and attending physicians.

Although the year ahead of you may now seem long and daunting, your tasks (other than survival) are quite achievable. The following competencies/milestones were copied from the curriculum for the in-patient general medicine rotation for the internship program at Washington University School of Medicine and Barnes-Jewish Hospital. You can see that not only are the objectives quite simple, but your rigorous work in medical school has well prepared you to master many of your goals. Throughout the year, use these objectives as a checklist to remind yourself of your accomplishments and to guide your learning in potential areas of weakness. - Patient care: o Gather accurate information about patients, including performing a thorough history and physical examination. o Synthesize data into a prioritized problem list and differential diagnosis, and then formulate diagnostic and therapeutic plans. o Prioritize each day's work. o Know the indications, contraindications, and risks of some invasive procedures and competently perform some invasive procedures"--Provided by publisher.

The text includes worksheets, competency guides, surveys, forms, self-reflection tools, internship aids, guided reflections and, most importantly, planning techniques to ensure that students get the most from their internship experiences. The Washington Manual Internship Survival Guide Princeton Review

The problem addressed in this project, lack of an internship manual geared towards interning at the DOR, was first noticed when the author was interning at the DOR. The existing manual has clear guidelines on student responsibilities, hours needed for internship, and what is expected of the intern at the internship site from the school's perspective. The author found the current manual to be very helpful but she would have liked a guide that describes how to obtain an internship at DOR, and what to do once at the internship site, a guide that will clearly give instructions on the whole process of a case and proper documentation methods. This manual is a necessity because once at the internship site, the intern is completely dependent on the guidance of the assigned counselor or supervisor. Counselors at most DOR offices carry an average of 100+ cases and might not always be available for the intern's questions. In some offices, the interns are not offered any sort of training except shadowing counselors and following a manual that outlines the processes that will be helpful to the intern when they are working with clients. The new DOR student manual will address strategies to obtain an internship, structure of DOR, processes and case documentation procedure specific to DOR, and help interns become better prepared for an internship with DOR. Having a student manual to help interns assimilate well to their first real world experience of being a counselor will be beneficial. This will help reduce the intern's dependency on other counselors and save valuable time when learning about DOR procedures. For these reasons the author finds the current project will be useful for future DOR interns. Data for this project was obtained through reviewing internship manuals from other Council on Rehabilitation Education

[CORE] accredited rehabilitation counseling program, professional journals, and Internet sources. Other sources of data were interviews with supervisors at the CA State Department of Rehabilitation [DOR] supervisors and students of vocational rehabilitation counseling program at California State University, Sacramento and personal experiences from the author's internship at the CA State Department of Rehabilitation, Antioch. A student guide that addresses strategies to obtain and prepare for an internship with DOR provides information on the case processes and documentation procedure specific to DOR was developed. This guide will help interns become better prepared for an internship with DOR. The Washington Manual Internship Survival Guide Routledge This book provides an overview of the internship as a central ingredient of effective preservice programs. Intended for those who are involved in the preparation of school administrators, the text emphasizes that preservice programs must ensure that interns will learn the skills that will make them effective leaders. The book is designed to address the issues and practice of internships so as to provide a meaningful model for prospective educational leaders. The text is divided into 10 chapters. Chapters 1, 2, and 3 relate to organizing and designing a learning encounter that focuses on a realistic set of goals. They provide information that will help the university, internship site (local school system), and intern to form a bond, thus enabling the partners to function as a minicohort. Chapters 4 and 5 discuss the specific traits that interns need to extend and enhance during their internship experience so that they may increase the quality of life in the organizations they will eventually lead. Chapters 6, 7, and 8 describe the specific roles that the university mentor, field mentor, and intern must enact during the internship, whereas the last two chapters provide examples of how to evaluate and assess the internship and the university experience. (Contains 10 references and an index.) (RJM)

A Guide to Practicum and Internship for School

Counselors-in-Training LWW

If you are a doctoral or non-doctoral student about to begin your internship in school psychology, you may have several questions about the process and what it will involve, and you may even be facing some anxiety about it. If you are a site or university supervisor preparing for the beginning of the internship year, you may be looking for ways to improve the internship experience for your students or for yourself and your fellow supervisors.

Newman has used his many years of experience working with interns and field supervisors to create this guide to the school psychology internship process to address these common concerns. He provides a comprehensive overview of the school psychology internship process from start to finish, describing actions that can be taken to promote a high quality, dynamic internship experience. Emphasis is placed on the idea that the internship year is a dynamic and formative experience, not a static event, and that interns and supervisors both must be active planners, coordinators, and shapers of the experience. Each part of the book explores a different phase of the internship, from the first days through job applications and interviews. Helpful and pragmatic tools are included throughout, such as evaluation tools, best practice guidelines, and sample forms. Online resources are also
