McKesson's Interqual criteria are one of the medical screening criteria that are widely used in emergency departments (EDs) to determine if patients qualify for observation or inpatient admission. Chronic heart failure (CHF) is one of the most common yet severe cardiovascular diseases seen in the ED with a relatively higher admission rate. This study is to evaluate the accuracy of Interqual ...

InterQual Interim Update: Our annual InterQual 2013 release rolled out four months ago, and the feedback from our clients has been very positive. With every annual InterQual release, we identify additional criteria that we would like to enhance, correct and clarify. As a result, we are planning an interim update targeted for mid-August.
