The most essential tool that you need for draping is the dress form. You can get a dress form at sometimes fabric stores, more often sewing supply stores. They can range on the higher end to about $300, but you can go online and get a much less expensive version. Once you can put pins into it, that's really what matters.

The Introduction to Draping on the Stand course is offered at University of the Arts London. Draping on the stand (often called modelling) is a pattern cutting method used by many designers, where designs are created on the stand and then transferred onto paper to make a pattern. The quick results achieved with draping on the stand mean you can see the garment come to life right in front of you, allowing you to play with fabric and adjust details (creating many variations in style) quickly ...
