'Istanbul': A Walker in the City - The New York Times

A map of the heart. Although it recalls the progress of a life, Istanbul is by no means chronological. All its memories and suggestions overlap, mingling and flavouring each other like the sensations of Istanbul itself. A recurring image of the narrative is that of a burning yali, the destruction by fire, one by one down the years,...

Orhan Pamuk was born in Istanbul and still lives in the family apartment building where his mother first held him in her arms. His portrait of his city is thus also a self-portrait, refracted by memory and the melancholy--or hüzn--that all Istanbulus share: the sadness that comes of living amid the ruins of a lost empire.
