The inverted pyramid is the basic structure for news writing. It simply means that the most important information should be at the top of your story, and the least important information should go at the bottom. As you move from top to bottom, the information should gradually become less important, mostly supporting what came before.

The core of the journalistic style is the newswriting style. Writing news leans upon the objectivity paradigm that has triggered wide academic debate about the biases in defining journalism. The majority of the scholarship regarding the journalistic style and writing gathers around newspapers and news; however, many traditions of writing transgress the traditional newswriting tradition and are supported by literary and cultural production, and the boundaries are becoming increasingly porous.

Journalistic Writing is a style of prose used in reporting associated with newspapers, journals, and other publications. The style has subtleties that vary between different subjects and audiences, but the most general style is referred to as News Style and is used in the front page section of newspapers.

Journalistic Writing. Good journalism has always been associated with competent writing and competent writing has always required an easy command of correct language and style. The style of a writer is an involuntary and intimate expression of his personality. The writer should match the mood of the audience. Style must be most unobtrusive.
