Scientific Evidence in Civil and Criminal Cases provides those participating in trials with a concise understanding of the scope of commonly encountered types of expert testimony and the nature of results which may be expected from specialists. It explores both the potentialities and limitations of expert proof. It discusses the qualifications needed for expert witnesses from various disciplines and explains the status of the law concerning the types of evidence encountered in a trial. One volume.

Transportation Research Record Florida

Criminal, Traffic Court, Appellate Rules of Procedure, and Rules of Judicial Administration
A research report to identify or develop a speed monitoring display suitable for use in interstate highway work zones, & evaluate the display's effectiveness in reducing speeds in interstate work zones. A review of the literature & current practice was conducted to identify product availability & other state transportation use. Speed monitoring display alternatives were identified & evaluated according to essential requirements & project evaluation criteria. A lidar laser radar device was tested with a changeable message sign. The speed monitoring display was effective in reducing speeds higher than 70 mph.

In-depth coverage of instrumentation and measurement from the Wiley Encyclopedia of Electrical and Electronics Engineering The Wiley Survey of Instrumentation and Measurement features 97 articles selected from the Wiley Encyclopedia of Electrical and Electronics Engineering, the one truly indispensable reference for electrical engineers. Together, these articles provide authoritative coverage of the important topic of instrumentation and measurement. This collection also, for the first time, makes this information available to those who do not have access to the full 24-volume encyclopedia. The entire encyclopedia is available online-visit www.interscience.wiley.com/EEEE for more details. Articles are grouped under sections devoted to the major topics in instrumentation and measurement, including: * Sensors and transducers * Signal conditioning * General-purpose instrumentation and measurement * Electrical variables * Electromagnetic variables * Mechanical variables * Time, frequency, and phase * Noise and distortion * Power and energy * Instrumentation for chemistry and physics * Interferometers and spectrometers * Microscopy * Data acquisition and recording * Testing methods The articles collected here provide broad coverage of this important subject and make the Wiley Survey of Instrumentation and Measurement a vital resource for researchers and practitioners alike

The Virginia Department of Transportation (VDOT) has made significant investments in the traffic-monitoring infrastructure that supports intelligent transportation systems (ITS). The purpose of this infrastructure is to provide accurate, real-time information on the status of the transportation system; thus it is critical that the monitoring infrastructure provide accurate data. Although detectors are usually tested immediately after installation, it is well known that they operate in a very harsh environment and thus are susceptible to degradation in accuracy and/or complete failure. Consequently, a long-term commitment to data quality assurance is required through maintenance, data quality assessment testing, and repair/replacement. The quality of data from ITS applications is becoming increasingly important as the data are more widely used. Not only is the data used in real-time operations, but also in myriad other, often more traditional, transportation applications. The purpose of this research project was to develop a procedure that VDOT could use to assess its ITS data quality. The report includes a data quality assessment procedure that is based on theory, practice, and empirical investigation. The procedure has the following key features: benchmark data collection using temporary installation of non-intrusive detectors; data quality assessed at the lane level to pinpoint problem detectors; data quality assessed at the 1-minute interval (or minimum practical measurement interval) level to provide sufficient quantities of data in reasonable periods of time; analysis techniques including both measures and plots, which provide quantitative and visual indications of data quality. The authors recommend that VDOT begin to use the procedure on both an ad-hoc basis and in a statewide program as a means of protecting its significant investment in ITS data collection.
