Leica M9 is a model name for the Leica M9 that was introduced on September 9, 2009 (as the first full-frame digital Leica M). It was the latest model designation using the M and a number. From their next model, Leica Camera AG introduced a new model system so each camera would simply be a Leica M but then with a model designation like Typ 240, Typ 246, Typ M-D 262 and so on.

The M9 has programmable user profiles, and unlike Nikon's, the LEICA's are super easy to save, recall, lock, rename and edit. Nikon's setting banks are awful. LEICA's profiles store everything about the camera you set, while Nikons only store a fraction of what you actually wanted to save and recall.
