In these early 20th century literary essays, Stefan Zweig offers a Central European view of the writers he believed to be the " three greatest novelists " of the 19th century: Balzac, Dickens, and Dostoevsky. In Zweig ' s view, Balzac set out to emulate his childhood hero Napoleon. Writing 20 hours a day, Balzac ' s literary ambition was " tantamount to monomania in its persistence, its intensity, and its concentration. " His characters, each similarly driven by one desperate urge, were more vital to Balzac than people in his daily life. In Zweig ' s reading, Dickens embodied Victorian England and its " bourgeois smugness " . His characters aspire to " A few hundred pounds a year, an amiable wife, a dozen children, a well-appointed table and succulent meats to entertain their friends with, a cottage not too far from London, the windows giving a view over the green countryside, a pretty little garden, and a modicum of happiness. " The ideal of middle-class respectability suffuses Dickens ' fiction. Dostoevsky drew on the struggles of his own life to illuminate the contradictions of the human soul. In Zweig ' s view, his heroes had no desire to be citizens or ordinary human beings. While Balzac ' s heroes " would gladly have subjugated the world, Dostoevsky ' s heroes wished to transcend it. "

This book, which accompanies a large-scale thematic exhibition, considers the experimental impulse in ideas and forms of the blues - and how it is manifested in a variety of works by contemporary visual artists. Covering nearly half a century and including the works of some 50 artists in a wide variety of media, this book looks beyond ideas of musical category to identify the blues as a visual and cultural idiom that has informed multiple generations of artists -- from Romare Bearden and William Eggleston to David Hammons and David Simon, creator of the television series The Wire. Generously illustrated with paintings, drawings, photographs, sculpture, installation, and video stills, and containing a wide range of critical writing, poetry, and fiction, the catalog explores topics central to the blues -- from articulations of daily life, modes of abstraction and repetition, and self-performance to ecstatic and cathartic expression and metaphors of memory and the archive. Both scholarly and unique, this reimagining of all things Blues will draw audiences from across cultural and racial boundaries as it celebrates a uniquely American idiom that has made its mark on nearly every contemporary artistic medium.
