The Life Orientation Test (LOT) was developed to assess individual differences in generalized optimism versus pessimism. This measure, and its successor the LOT-R, have been used in a good deal of research on the behavioral, affective, and health consequences of this personality variable. Although the LOT was widely used, it had some problems.

What is also remarkable is the knowledge that amongst the school ' s academic achievers are a diverse international group including exchange students. This is due to the fact that the school has an extremely friendly and supportive environment, which has resulted in many immigrants enrolling at The Settlers.
