Malina is a 1971 novel by the Austrian writer Ingeborg Bachmann. It tells the story of a female writer and her relationships with two different men, one joyous and one introverted. The book was adapted into a 1991 film with the same title, directed by Werner Schroeter from a screenplay by Elfriede Jelinek.

Malina (novel) - Wikipedia

Malina ist der einzige vollendete Roman der österreichischen Dichterin Ingeborg Bachmann. Das Buch erschien zwei Jahre vor dem aufsehenerregenden Feuertod der bekannten Autorin im Jahr 1973 in Rom. In Malina beschreibt eine namenlose Ich-Erzählerin ihre tragische Liebesgeschichte zu zwei Männern.

Malina von Ingeborg Bachmann — Gratis-Zusammenfassung
Synopsis. Part detective novel, part love story, part psychoanalytic case study, Malina is a staggering portrait of a writer trying to tell her own story in a world dominated by men. 'I was subordinate to him from the beginning, and I must have known early on that he was destined to be my doom'.

Malina (Roman) – Wikipedia
Biography. Bachmann was born in Klagenfurt, in the Austrian state of Carinthia, the daughter of Olga (née Haas) and Matthias Bachmann, a schoolteacher. Her father was an early member of the Austrian National Socialist Party. She had a sister, Isolde, and a brother, Heinz. She studied philosophy, psychology, German philology, and law at the universities of Innsbruck, Graz, and Vienna.

Iago (Bachmann)
In Malina, originally published in German in 1971, Ingeborg Bachmann invites the reader into a world stretched to the very limits of language. An unnamed narrator, a writer in Vienna, is torn between two men: viewed through the tilting prism of obsession, she travels further into her own madness, anxiety, and genius.

Ingeborg Bachmann 's Malina: The (im)Possibility of Writing the Female Self. What I find quite odd and profound: Who knows, I might. It is a particularly difficult novel for me to describe, as it tackles many serious topics war, post-war, time, history, personal relationships, men and women yet when you pull back, its main thrust is elusive.

Austrian writer Ingeborg Bachmann was a mentor of sorts to Bernhard and the basis for the poet Maria in his final novel Extinction. Malina, published two years before her death (aged 47 in 1973) was her only novel, although intended to be the first of a trilogy called Todesarten (Ways of Dying) The translation here is b
