To “paint with scissors,” a phrase coined by artist Henri Matisse, you cut out shapes, place them into a unique design and then glue them on paper. It may sound simple, but it's a lot of fun. And the possibilities of what you can create are endless. Try painting with scissors with your kids and see what you can create!

Henri Matisse: The Cut-Outs

was exhibited at London's Tate Modern, from April to September 2014. The show was the largest and most extensive of the cut-outs ever mounted, including approximately 100 paper maquettes—borrowed from international public and private collections—as well as a selection of related drawings, prints, illustrated books, stained glass, and textiles. Henri Matisse: His Final Years and Exhibit - Biography

Students in first and second grade created striking collages made from a variety of images similar to those designed by Henri Matisse. In reference to his paper cutouts, Matisse stated, "I cut paper, but I'm drawing with the scissors." Matisse also called the collage process "cutting into color". We looked at examples of Matisse's Goldfish...

Henri Matisse - Wikipedia

In the late 1940s, Henri Matisse turned almost exclusively to cut paper as his primary medium, and scissors as his chief implement, introducing a radically new operation that came to be called a cut-out. Matisse would cut painted sheets into forms of varying shapes and sizes—from the vegetal to the abstract—which he then arranged into lively compositions, striking for their play with color and contrast, their exploitation of decorative strategies, and their economy of means.

Henri Matisse Cut-Outs

This collage shows the different ways Matisse cut out paper: from larger shapes such as the purple horse, to more careful and detailed cutting involved in the yellow, white and black shapes. Here, Matisse has created lots of shapes that look similar to each other, but each one is a unique leaf.

Matisse generally cut the shapes out freehand, using a small pair of scissors and saving both the item cut out and remaining scraps of paper. With the help of Lydia Delectorskaya he would arrange and rearrange the colored paper at his cutouts until he was completely satisfied that the results.
