Conventional wisdom says that integration into the global marketplace tends to weaken the power of traditional faith in developing countries. But, as Meera Nanda argues in this path-breaking book, this is hardly the case in today 's India. Against expectations of growing secularism, India has instead seen a remarkable intertwining of Hinduism and neoliberal ideology, spurred on by a growing capitalist class. It is this “ State-Temple-Corporate Complex, ” she claims, that now wields decisive political and economic power, and provides ideological cover for the dismantling of the Nehru-era state-dominated economy. According to this new logic, India ’ s rapid economic growth is attributable to a special “ Hindu mind, ” and it is what separates the nation ’ s Hindu population from Muslims and others deemed to be “ anti-modern. ” As a result, Hindu institutions are replacing public ones, and the Hindu “ revival ” itself has become big business, a major source of capital accumulation. Nanda explores the roots of this development and its possible future, as well as the struggle for secularism and socialism in the world ’ s second-most populous country.
