Each morning Monet and village children transported his canvases, easel, paints, brushes and more to the motif he had elected to paint. One day, so absorbed in painting as much as he could within a seven- to 15-minute window—his calculation for the time it took before the light changed—Monet was actually swept away by a high tide, supplies and all.

About Monet Paints a Day In November
1885, impressionist
painter Claude Monet
vacationed in Étretat, France, where he spent

his days outside,
painting scenes of the seaside village. One morning he rose early
and carried all of his supplies and half-
finished paintings out to the cliffs and rocky beach, finally stopping to paint the arch called Manneporte.

About Monet Paints a Day. It is 1885 the famous impressionist
painter, Claude Monet,
settles in on an isolated beach to begin another day of open air painting. With single-minded focus, Monet
becomes so absorbed in his work, that he doesn ' t feel the wind kicking up the sand, he doesn ' t see the tide coming closer, and he definitely doesn ' t

notice the big wave
towering over his head.
