Riding motorcycles is fun, but author Ken Condon maintains that there is a state of consciousness to be achieved beyond the simple pleasure of riding down the road. Riding in the Zone helps riders find that state of being. It's the experience of being physically and mentally present in the moment, where every sense is sharply attuned to the ride. Your mind becomes silent to the chatter of daily life, and everyday problems seem to dissolve. You feel a deeper appreciation for life. Your body responds to this state of being with precise, fluid movements, you feel in balance, your muscles are relaxed, and it seems as though every input you make is an expression of mastery. This is "the Zone." Condon identifies all of the factors that affect entering the Zone and addresses each one individually, from the development of awareness and mental skills to mastering physical control of the motorcycle. At the end of each chapter are drills designed to transform the book's ideas into solid, practical riding skills. Riding in the Zone takes riders to the next level in their skill set.

His wide-ranging text covers both sports psychology and the psychoanalysis of common riding experiences, including the results of Dr. Barnes' own empirical research. Heartfelt and thought provoking, here is a straightforward account of what makes real motorcyclists tick. In an emergency, don't lose your head. Panic creates mistakes. There are all types of emergencies. Most people don't realize that if your car goes into the water, the water pressure outside the car door makes it virtually impossible to open. Either keep a screwdriver, hammer or punch near the driver's seat so you can quickly break the window and swim out. If you don't have that, kick the windshield out. The only way I know that is that I watched a safety video and learned it. You might think it's boring but I took the time to educate myself about all the types of hypothetical dangerous situations I could be in and how to handle them. If it happens, you know exactly what to do. Knowing what to do can keep you calm and brave. Learn safety information with everyone in your household including children. Create an emergency plan for the entire family so that everyone knows what to do.
