The Man You Never Knew You Knew It ’ s one of the most powerful and popular images in the history of space exploration: an astronaut in a snow-white spacesuit, untethered and floating alone in an expanse of blue. Bruce McCandless II is the man in that spacesuit, and Wonders All Around: The Incredible True Story of Astronaut Bruce McCandless II and the First Untethered Flight in Space is the thoroughly engrossing, extensively researched story of his inspiring life and groundbreaking accomplishments, as told by his son, a gifted writer and storyteller. Bruce McCandless II, a Navy fighter pilot, joined NASA in 1966. He was Houston ’ s capsule communicator—the person talking to the astronauts—as Apollo 11 ’ s Neil Armstrong made his giant leap for mankind in 1969. McCandless supported subsequent Apollo flights and developed technology and techniques his fellow astronauts used during the Skylab program, working behind the scenes until he was chosen to ride Challenger into space on the tenth shuttle mission. When he stepped into the cosmos to test the Manned Maneuvering Unit, he became a space flight icon. But the road to that incredible feat was not the sure bet it should have been for such a gifted man. Bruce McCandless II was an astronaut for 24 years, and his story encompasses the development of the space agency itself—the changes in focus, in personnel, in approach, and in the city of Houston that grew up with it. Wonders All Around is more than a catalogue of McCandless ’ s extraordinary achievements, which included work on the design, deployment, and repair of the Hubble Space Telescope. It is also a tale of perseverance and devotion. Recounted with insight and humor, this book explores the relationship between a father and a son, men of two very different generations. And finally, it is an exploration of the mindset of one unique individual, and the courage, imagination, and tenacity that propelled him and his country to their place in the forefront of space history. From Wonders All Around: "Bruce McCandless turned his Jeep around and screeched out of the cul-de-sac in front of our house for the ten-minute drive to the space center. The moon, a waxing crescent, was standing thirty degrees above the western horizon, and my father slipped into a sort of reverie as he sped toward it on NASA Road One. The moon floated serene and imperturbable in front of him like a black-and-white photograph of itself, Earth ’ s gravitational remora, her pale silent sister, movie star and legend, goddess and mirage. Bruce McCandless had just turned thirty-two. He was an engineer, a true son of science, a distant nephew of Sir Isaac Newton. He knew the formulas required for achieving orbital velocity, could tell you the fuel mixtures you needed, the stages and timing of rocket-booster separations. He brushed sentiments away like so many spider webs. But even he was having trouble believing that human beings—his colleagues and friends—were up there in the sky, getting ready to do something no one had ever done before. He was going to be part of it. He would be talking to two men as they walked on the moon. The young astronaut hadn ’ t quite reached his lifelong goal of touching the lunar surface, but he was close. He was almost there. He could feel it."

Thousands of international medical graduates come to the United States to start their career as physicians. Many of them, however, are not aware of the challenges and problems that they may encounter along the way. These difficulties can range from the language and cultural barriers to a lack of confidence and self-esteem. Many students are also unaware of the other career options besides getting into a clinical residency program. As a result of these issues, a great number of foreign medical students remain unmatched into the National Resident Matching Program. Not matching can be devastating for these graduates, both financially and medically. Students often suffer from psychological effects like major depression and generalized anxiety disorder. This book outlines the potential problems faced by these graduates and their possible solutions. Each chapter collects research evidence, interviews and surveys to gather information to work on each possible problem one by one and describes a solution in great detail. Comprised of thirty chapters, each chapter is broken down into smaller sub-sections to investigate the main theme in depth. Issues addressed include the different types of international medical graduates and their lives in the United States, differences in the education system and healthcare system, the triangle of residency, language and cultural barriers, lack of professional contacts, confidence, self-image and self-esteem issues, and restriction to specific fields and career paths. Written by experts in the field, International Medical Graduates in the United States is a first of its kind text that addresses the biggest issues faced by foreign medical graduates in today's world.

Background and Goal of Study: ERAS programs have been shown to reduce hospital stay, without increasing the rate of complications or readmissions 30 days after discharge, but there are few articles about the degree of patientsu2032 satisfaction. The aim of this study was to know the degree of satisfaction with an ERAS protocol in elective colorectal surgery in the elderly.Materials and Methods: It is a cross sectional analytical study. The inclusion criteria were: elective colorectal surgery, 70 years or more, appropriate cognitive state and ASA I-II-III. The exclusion criteria were: urgent surgery and the existence of higher concomitant surgical processes.Our first 55 consecutive patients operated between May 2016 and January 2017 with these inclusion criteria were interviewed throughtelephone four days after discharge. The questionnaire survey used was validated and performed by the Workgroup of Guidelines of Enhanced Recovery for Abdominal Surgery of Spain (RICA guide) and it was published in 2014 by the Ministry of Health, Social Services and Equality of Spain. SPSS software (version20.0 SPSS inc.) was used for statistical analysis. The results are presented as number of patients (%) and meanu00b1standard deviation.Results and Discussion: 26 (45.6%) patients were women and 31 (54.5%) were men. The average age was 80.1u00b115.4. 36 (63.2%) had no complications, according to Clavien Dindo classssification. The hospital length of stay was 10.1u00b113.9 (includes the day before surgery and the day of the surgery itself). 53 (96.4%) patients were very satisfied and 2 (3.6%) satisfied with the care and the treatment received by the health staff during their hospital admission. 55 (100%) would be reoperated following this protocol. 48 (87.3%) rated the level of competence and coordination of the medical team as very high. 44 (80%) considered that the information received in the preanesthesia and surgery consultation was very good, and they valued this consultation as one of the most positive aspect of the protocol. 36 (63.2%) did not have nausea of vomiting after the surgery and 48 (84.2%) rated their pain as VASu22643 (minimun 0 and maximun 10).Conclusion: Elderly patient operated on elective colorectal surgery according to an ERAS protocol are very satisfied with the assitance provided. Standarized surveys are needed to compare these results.
