Insurance Guaranty Funds and the Involuntary Transfer of Insurance Policies Anthem Press A notary is a public official responsible for independently verifying signatures and oaths. Depending on how a document is written, a notarization serves to affirm the identity of a signer and the fact that they personally executed their signature. A notarization, or notarial act, officially documents the identity of a party to a document or transaction and the occasion of the signing that others can rely upon, usually at face value. A notary's authentication is intended to be reliable, to avoid the inconvenience of having to locate a signer to have them personally verify their signature, as well as to document the execution of a document perhaps long after the lifetime of the signer and the notary. An oath is a sworn statement. In most cases a person will swear that a written statement, oral statement, or testimony they are about to give is true. A notary can document that the notary administered an oath to an individual.

Modern database systems enhance the capabilities of traditional database systems by their ability to handle any kind of data, including text, image, audio, and video. Today, database systems are particularly relevant to the Web, as they can provide input to content generators for Web pages, and can handle queries issued over the Internet. The eXtensible Markup Language (XML) is used in applications running the gamut from content management through publishing to Web services and e-commerce. It is used as the universal communication language for exchanging music and graphics as well as purchase orders and technical documentation. As database systems increasingly talk to each other over the Web, there is a fast-growing desire to use XML as the standard exchange format. As a result, many relational database systems can export data as XML documents and import data from XML documents and provide query and update capabilities for XML data.

In addition, so called native XML database and integration systems are appearing on the database market, whose claim is to be especially tailored to storing, maintaining, and easily accessing XML documents. After the huge success of the 1st XML Database Symposium (XSym 2003) last year in Berlin (already then in conjunction with VLDB) it was decided to establish this symposium as an annual event that is supposed to take place as an integral part of VLDB. The goal of this symposium is to provide a high-quality platform for the presentation and discussion of new research results and system developments. It is targeted at scientists, practitioners, vendors and users of XML and database technologies. Property Insurance Litigator's Handbook Greenhaven
