Pohon-pohon jati muda menjulang melampauimu, melampauiku ñ melampaui kita. ì Nantinya mereka akan hidup melampaui umurku, umurmu ñ umur kita, î katamu. Siapa yang pernah menanam pohon akan tahu bahwa yang tumbuh bukan hanya sebuah batang dalam ruang, tapi juga se bentuk tanda dalam waktu. (ì Matahari î) Di pohon-pohon raksasa itu tinggal babi-babi dengan tubuh tambun dan lemak bertumpuk. Babi-babi akan menyukai apel- apel kecil di dadaku. Dengan napas mendengus dan suara menguik-nguik, mereka akan menjilati dan menggerogotinya. Babi memang rakus. Air liur mereka akan menetes-netes, meninggalkan bau bacin yang susah hilang. Tapi jangan kuatir, babi-babi itu pemurah dan tak pernah marah. Kau akan sanggup membeli sabun wangi sesudahnya, dan sepasang sepatu kaca. Kilapnya akan membuatmu lupa. (ì Kupu-kupu î) Suatu ketika, aku begitu kesal, sampai mengusulkan pada ibu untuk menukarku dengan Lara. Ibu bilang, keluarga tak bisa ditukar. Aku bilang, sayang sekali. Soalnya, kalau bisa, aku ingin menukar ibu. Ibuku terkejut. Dengan siapa, tanyanya marah. Dengan Nyai Roro Kidul, jawabku mantap.(ì Sempurna î) Lelaki yang dicintai ibu mencintaiku juga. Ia suka membelai kepalaku dan membelikan aku berbagai jajanan: permen dan aneka keripik yang mengandung MSG. Aku tahu, permen tak baik untuk gigi, dan MSG tak baik untuk otak, tapi aku tak peduli. Ibu tak pernah membelikan jajanan dan tak memberikan ayah. Jadi, lelaki ini ideal. (ì Perempuan Tua dalam Kepala î) Mendekati pagi, sebuah bintang berkelip di timur. Suaranya berdenting bening. Sania menjulurkan tangan. Tapi seseorang mendahuluinya. Lelaki itu tiba-tiba telah menggenggam bintang tadi di tangannya. Ia mendekat. Membuka genggamannya. Bintang timur itu berkelau di mata mereka. (ì Dongeng dari Gibraltar î)

LAW, POLITICS & SOCIETY: The Unravelling of Malaysia and Indonesia Potentiality Gramedia Pustaka Utama

Half-Japanese and half-Javanese Lasi flees from the constraints of her small village to find herself enmeshed in the political corruption of Jakarta.  The bekisar is a fine crossbreed between jungle fowl and domestic chicken that adorns the houses of the wealthy. Lasi, whose father was a Japanese soldier, fair skinned and beautiful, is such an acquisition for a rich man in Jakarta. She is born in a village where the main source of income is tapping coconut palms for their rich sap, or nira. Her life takes an unexpected turn when she is betrayed by her husband and flees to Jakarta. She meets Mrs. Lanting, procuress for men in high government and social circles, who sells her to the rich Handarbeni. Lasi enjoys the new splendor as a much-desired ornament, but is alarmed when she discovers the marriage is a sham. Kanjat, a childhood friend, is now grown into a man. Lasi and Kanjat rediscover their affection for each other. Their bond is the village, its people and traditions. They struggle to free Lasi from a net of power, corruption, and deceit.

Book Of Forbidden Feelings.The - Hard Cover Weidenfeld & Nicolson

This timeless classic by Harold J. Laski explains the nature of the modern state by examining its characteristics, as revealed by its history. The State in Theory and Practice is a work that grows in significance, rather than dwindles over time. This is because, as Sidney A. Pearson, Jr. points out, Laski helped develop and expound the foundational arguments of the political left. After the collapse of the Soviet Union, even on the hard left, few people thought of Marxism, at least in its classical formulation by Laski in the 1930s, as a political alternative. Much of the interest in Laski seeks to separate the early Laski of pluralist parliamentary arguments from the later Laski of Marxism. Laski's appeal rests on subtle aspects of his science of politics that require a detailed examination before their full significance can be understood. The state is a work that operates at several layers of assumptions and implications. The significance of Laski starts with the observation that among many intellectuals on the left, the political critique of liberal democracy remains as influential after the collapse of the Soviet Union as it was when Laski wrote. The leftist critique of classical liberalism is one of the touchstones of modern political thought and Laski remains part of that tradition. Laski is one of the links between what might be called the "old left" of the pre-World War II era and the "new left" of the 1960's and later.

My Name is Mata Hari said, "I am a AmazonCrossing At the turn of the twentieth century, exotic dancer Mata Hari lived and loved by her own rules.  My Name is Mata Hari tells the story of the infamous dancer and courtesan who began as Margaretha Geertruida Zelle, a young Dutch woman who married the older Rudolph MacLeod, a military officer, and traveled with him to the Dutch East Indies. Claiming her mother's Javanese ancestry, she changed her name to Mata Hari, Malay for "eye of the day." Mata Hari danced on stages across Europe and the Middle East, and took many high-ranking military and government officials as her lovers. At the end of a tumultuous life, convicted for espionage during the First World War yet sustained by her pride, she genuine courtesan. And I am a dancer in the true sense."  Remy Sylado is the pen name of noted Indonesian novelist, poet, playwright, and musician, Yapi Tambayong. He also wrote the screenplay for the award-winning film, Ca Bau Kan (2002). Novelist and journalist Dewi Anggraeni delivers a creative rendition of startling depth and sensitivity for the first of Sylado's novels to appear in English. The Birdwoman's Palate Bloomsbury Publishing USA Afrizal Malna sits apart from many of Indonesia's recent poets. Not only is he a productive literary and theater critic, he is a novelists and short story writer as well. In a writing career that has now spanned more than thirty years, Afrizal has published several major collections of poetry. His poems have been translated into Dutch, German, and English, of which this is the first full length collection. Afrizal is concerned with a questioning of language and a bodily engagement with public and private space, things and their connotations and associations. It is through the appearance of everyday objects that Afrizal's poems emerge as a repository of the cultural meanings of space and things in Indonesia's everyday modernity. Afrizal's poems, through drawing on practices of montage, precise diction and curious grammar, maintain a fine balance between consistency of style and variation in theme and subject which asserts his distinctive poetic voice. These are poems that trace the quickly changing urban trajectory of present day Indonesia.

addresses the neglect of practical research methods in cultural studies. It provides readers with clearly written overviews of research methods in cultural studies, along with guidelines on how to put these methods into operation. It advocates a multi-method approach, with students drawing from a pool of techniques and approaches suitable for their own topics of investigation. The book covers the following main areas: * Drawing on experience, and studying how narratives make sense of experience.* Investigating production processes in the cultural industries, and the consumption and assimilation of cultural products by audiences and fans.* Taking both quantitative and qualitative approaches to the study of cultural life.* Analysing visual images and both spoken and written forms of discourse.* Exploring cultural memory and historical representation. An eerie, alienating, yet

comic and profoundly sympathetic short story collection about Americans in America by one of Indonesia's most prominent writers,
now in an English translation for its fortieth anniversary, with a
foreword by Intan Paramaditha A
Penguin Classic In
these seven stories
of People from Bloomington, our peculiar narrators
find themselves in the most peculiar of circumstances
and encounter the most peculiar of people. Set in Bloomington, Indiana, where the author lived as a graduate student in the 1970s, this is far from the

idyllic portrait of small-town America.
Rather, sectioned
into apartment
units and rented
rooms, and gridded
by long empty
streets and distances traversable only by car, it's a place where the solitary
can all too easily
remain solitary;
where people can at once be obsessively
curious about others, yet fail to form genuine
connections with anyone. The characters feel their loneliness
acutely and yet
deliberately
estrangle others.
Budi Darma paints a realist world
portrayed through an absurdist frame, morbid and funny at the same time. For decades, Budi Darma
has influenced and inspired many
writers, artists,
filmmakers, and
readers in Indonesia, yet his stories transcend
time and place.
With The People

from Bloomington, Budi Darma draws us
to a universality
recognized by readers around the world—the cruelty
of life and the difficulties that people face in relating to one another while negotiating their own identities. The stories are not about "strangeness"
in the sense of culture, race, and nationality.
Instead, they are a statement about how everyone,
regardless of nationality or
race, is strange,
and subject to the
same tortures,
suspicions,
yearnings, and
peculiarities of the mind.

As democratic reforms swept Indonesia in
the late nineties,
the nation's young
generation asked themselves: what does it mean to be free?
Spanning fifteen years, this novel follows the struggles and hopes, loves and disappointments of two young Indonesians who came of age during Reformasi. Following the entwined paths of Julita and Rizky as they struggle to break free from a pattern of repeated disappointments and define themselves, Handayani presents a portrait of the changing and complex reality of contemporary Indonesia, and of the younger generation born out of revolution. 'From Now On Everything Will Be Different' is a compelling study of freedom and love, community and conformity, told with humour, sensuality and a subtly sharp political intelligence. "A finely choreographed love story that shadows the larger changes and challenges of life in contemporary Indonesia. It charts the fever and the friction of a relationship, exploring conflicted identities in a complex world, where social pressures push against emerging independence and new freedoms. Sharply designed, intoxicating, reverberant."

-Nicholas Jose "The protagonists are complicated and full of life, a boy and a girl becoming a man and a woman, and struggling to do it with as much honesty as they can. This novel is about what it is like to come of age at the end of a revolution." -Ruby J. Murray "The novel is set against the uncertain politics of contemporary Indonesia, the excesses and failures of which lend a poignant urgency to the characters' equally clumsy attempts at forging an honest and enduring relationship; as democracy goes (or remains elusive), so does love."-Jose Dalisay Jr. This is Eliza Vitri Handayani's first novel to be published in English. She has published short stories, essays and translations in leading Indonesian literary outlets as well as in the Asia Literary Review, Griffith Review and Asymptote Journal. In 2004 she won an Anugerah Adikarya from the Indonesian Publishers Association, for best young-adult book. She is the founder of InterSastra, an Indonesian literary translation initiative.

This practical guide is for teachers who wish to undertake research in their classrooms with a view to improving their practice. It will enable teachers to enhance their own or their colleagues' teaching and to test educational theory. Negeri para peri Cambridge University Press 'Yimbama' is the second collection by Indigenous Australian poet Ken Canning, also known as Burraga Gutya. Canning is one of the strongest voices in contemporary Indigenous Australian activism. The poems collected here offer an unflinching examination of the lasting damage done to Indigenous Australia by European colonization and the continuing political struggle. As unflinching and uncompromising these poems are in their protest and dissent, love for country, community and tradition remains central. These poems give witness and insight to the reality of contemporary Aboriginal Australia and demand to be heard. There is wisdom here, hard-won, lived and told true. In writing I try to cover a diverse range of topics while writing about issues that I have experienced. As an Aboriginal man in my 60 s, I have seen a lot of political deception I have suffered imprisonment and having all dignity stripped away. I have seen our Peoples lost forever in institutions and finally because of this, in later years I was diagnosed with a schzio-efective disorder. I have survived this and live a normal life. Some of my poems reflect my feelings of political treachery, oppression and the mental state this leaves. Yet in the text their remains a love of our Culture and Our Mother Earth. A gentleness survives and overcomes the bitterness. It is important to note that while I am writing about my experiences, I am writing about the First Nations Peoples of this country s survival against some horrific experiences. In address mental health issues, I was fortunate to be able to write some of these poems while I was ill. I want ALL peoples to know such an illness is not the end and please do not let it define you. I have learned via my wife Cheryl, love overcomes all adversity. Burraga Gutya Ken Canning is from the Kunja Clan of the Bidjara Peoples of South West Queensland. His language name is Burraga Gutya. Poet and playwright, he started writing over 40 years ago from a prison cell in the old Boggo Road Jail in Brisbane, learning how to read and write from a fellow inmate. He worked for many years in Aboriginal Education, and was a founder and former Academic and Cultural advisor at the Jumbunna Indigenous House of Learning.

This short story collection contains 13 short stories by Ahmad Tohari which were written between 1976 and 1986. Like his previous works, in this collection Tohari stays true to his path and presents the village life as well as the daily struggles of the poor and innocent people.

As what has been described in the "Foreword", Tohari's strength lies in the village setting which is rich with intricate details about the local plants and animals. Apart from that, Tohari's style is clear, direct, and simple although his stories also apply strong metaphors and irony.
