'A comprehensive, well-written and beautifully organized book on publishing articles in the humanities and social sciences that will help its readers write forward with a first-rate guide as good company.' - Joan Bolker, author of Writing Your Dissertation in Fifteen Minutes a Day 'Humorous, direct, authentic ... a seamless weave of experience, anecdote, and research.' - Kathleen McHugh, professor and director of the UCLA Center for the Study of Women Wendy Laura Belcher's Writing Your Journal Article in Twelve Weeks: A Guide to Academic Publishing Success is a revolutionary approach to enabling academic authors to overcome their anxieties and produce the publications that are essential to succeeding in their fields. Each week, readers learn a particular feature of strong articles and work on revising theirs accordingly. At the end of twelve weeks, they send their article to a journal. This invaluable resource is the only guide that focuses specifically on publishing humanities and social science journal articles.

An international trade emerged between 1870-1895 that incorporated the circulation of books among countries worldwide. A history of the social network and select agents who sold and distributed books overseas, this study demonstrates agents increasingly thought of the world as a negotiable, connected system and books as transnational commodities.

Poetry. Drawings by Paul Blake. Originally published in 1977 by Good Gay Poets of Boston. "A book whose page has come. ruth weiss has been sounding these poems, alone or with jazz accompaniment, for many years. It's now ocheny chorosho that they appear for the senses of those potential poets searching for new modulations of expression; for her poems are of the rhythms of our time and the interlaced, repetitive subtleties are sewn by that 'thread for those who breathe in rags' (Vallejo) which bespeaks and sings the deep loom of the bronze lotus."—Jack Hirschman

A guide for educators to incorporate computational thinking—a set of cognitive skills applied to problem solving—into a broad range of subjects. Computational thinking—a set of mental and cognitive tools applied to problem solving—is a fundamental skill that all of us (and not just computer scientists) draw on. Educators have found that computational thinking enhances learning across a range of subjects and reinforces students' abilities in reading, writing, and arithmetic. This book offers a guide for incorporating computational thinking into middle school and high school classrooms, presenting a series of activities, projects, and tasks that employ a range of pedagogical practices and cross a variety of content areas. As students problem solve, communicate, persevere, work as a team, and learn from mistakes, they develop a concrete understanding of the abstract principles used in computer science to create code and other digital artifacts. The book guides students and teachers to integrate computer programming with visual art and geometry, generating abstract expressionist – style images; construct topological graphs that represent the relationships between characters in such literary works as Harry Potter and the Sorcerer ' s Stone and Romeo and Juliet; apply Newtonian physics to the creation of computer games; and locate, analyze, and present empirical data relevant to social and political issues. Finally, the book lists a variety of classroom resources, including the programming languages Scratch (free to all) and Codesters (free to teachers). An accompanying website contains the executable programs used in the book ' s activities.

A Fun Homeschooling Journal for Beginners. 100 Delightful Lessons for Ages 5 to 7! By Sarah Janisse Brown & Tolik Trishkin. This Journal is especially for children who like nature, sports, adventure, and creativity. This book is best for students who know letter sounds, can write letters, and are learning how to read and spell. This is a fun-spelling journal for kindergarten to 1st grade, or for children of all ages who have dyslexia and are learning how to read and write. The Dyslexic Font is used to help avoid reading confusion for children who may have Dyslexia, ADHD or Autism. The illustrations show children playing sports, having fun with friends and pets, and exploring the world. This book is for boys and girls, but some girls may think that it's too boyish. Most of the illustrations show boys ages 5 to 12 playing sports, building, and going on adventures. There are several illustrations that include adventurous little girls too. This Book Includes: Spelling Time Reading Time Math Time Coloring Time Nature Study Listening Time (For Audio Books) Movie Time (For Documentaries) Mazes Feelings and Moods This book is designed to be used with a stack of educational library books. The child may choose to learn about for interesting topics like dinosaurs, space, sports, plants, animals, Star Wars, animation, insects, or anything subject that they would like to know more about. The parent should take the child to the library or book store to choose books to be used with this Homeschooling Curriculum Journal. This Journal will help to instill a love for learning that will last a lifetime.
