Follow that documentation with the nursing response and intervention. The patient response to the intervention is the next step in the documentation. Your documentation is supposed to reflect the nursing care of that patient on your shift.

Ltc Nursing Documentation Guidelines

Although it helps establish consistent documentation practices, it's still up to you to properly document your nursing assessments and patient care. Take care to follow these guidelines to prevent a plaintiff's attorney from raising questions about the quality of care you gave your patient. Be objective. Perform assessments using your senses of touch, sight, hearing, and smell, and document facts, not your subjective opinions.

long-term care facility (including residents, staff, visitors, outside healthcare workers, vendors, etc.) should be asked about COVID-19 symptoms and they must also have their temperature checked.

Documentation Guidelines for Skilled Care

Documentation in the long-term setting is regulated by Federal regulation (FS14). Documentation should be complete, accurate, readily accessible and systematically organized. The admission assessments are lengthy but are important as these assessments create a picture of the resident's overall condition.

ANA's Principles for Nursing Documentation

While documentation focuses on progress notes, there are many other aspects to charting. Doctor's orders must be noted, medication administration must be documented on medication sheets, and vital signs must be graphed. Flow sheets must be checked off, filled out, or initialed.
